CRIMES OF KOREANS OFTEN ASSOCIATED WITH BURIAL RITES

Common Occurrence for Interment of Bodies to be Made in Lands of Other People.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Seoul, Korea, Oct. 4.—A curious social fact about Korea is that the most numerous crimes committed by Koreans are connected in some way with tombs and burials. This is the conclusion of M. Kokubu, chief public prosecutor of the supreme court here. A common occurrence is for Koreans to bury their dead in ground belonging to other people without first obtaining the consent of the owner. The crime is sometimes accomplished in secret, sometimes by force, and it is almost invariably done under the cover of darkness.

The underlying reason for these offenses is the Korean superstition which the prosperity or unhappiness of the surviving members of the family in which death has occurred, as well as the happiness of the departed person, depends upon the selection of the burial ground of the dead. Therefore Koreans believe that by selecting a place that a certain spot is good for the burial place they do not hesitate to take possession of the indicated ground.

Their obsession concerning tombs also is frequent. The criminals first open up the tombs belonging to some wealthy family, then remove the head of the corpse and hold it for ransom. In former times the blackmailer succeeded, as Koreans believe that the desecration of tombs brings woe to those who allowed them to remain in a ruined condition. Recently these crimes have decreased, owing to the activity of the police.

Abduction of Brides Tolerated.

Mr. Kokubu has recorded another favorite Korean custom, namely, the carrying off by force of widows by their parents and relatives. This is done in the regular way on account of their poverty.

Influenced by Confucianism, Korean women in general believe that they are morally bound not to marry again after the death of their husbands. Many men cannot marry on account of the great expense attached to the ceremony. These two conditions have combined to bring about abductions, which are very frequent. Immediately after a woman loses her husband some Don Juan in needy circumstances is certain to undertake her rescue.

Koreans Marry Early.

The investigation of crime and criminals in Korea by Procurator Kokubu, and the tradition of the widow's custom, leave little room for marriage customs. These customs have not been changed by the annexation of the peninsula to Japan.

All classes of Koreans marry very early. Not infrequently one meets in the street a girl of fourteen or fifteen already married. These boys and girls marriages are arranged by their parents, the young people having no voice in the matter. The bride is taken to the bridegroom's house, where the parents of a prospective couple go for advice. If the astrologer decides against the pact the marriage is dropped. If his advice be favorable, the parents exchange betrothal gifts and the wedding is announced to the actual parties to the alliance. They are however still not allowed to see each other.

In Korea, girls are kept confined in an "inner chamber" and are not allowed to go out. They are entirely cut off from society, and consequently are melancholy and unsocial. They are exchanged as property accepted by the prospective bride at heart-breaking prices, for she has to leave her own family and join strange people. On the wedding day she says goodbye to her parents and goes to the bridegroom's house, where she is Korean child, covered with a tiger's skin. This the Koreans believe keeps away the evil spirit. The bride is only allowed to see her husband for a few minutes during the wedding ceremony is over, for during the ceremony her head is enveloped in a thick veil.

Independence Movement Collapses.

An attempt of a few politicians in Korea to form a "righteous army" to restore Korea to its independence has collapsed and the leaders have been sentenced to jail chiefly on the ground that they were obtaining money under false pretenses.

The defendants, numbering three, were recently tried in the local court at Seoul. The hearing had all the picturesque of a Korean gathering, the top-knots and the historic Korean vest, the contrasting figures of the up-to-date Korean dandy and the traditional Korean scholar.

Two of the defendants were Confucian scholars and the third a farmer who declared that their ambition was to show to foreigners that Koreans were discontented with Japanese rule and that the restoration of independence was justified and desirable. The "righteous army" numbered about fifty, and they realized they were weak. Money was collected for traveling expenses, but nothing ever came of the movement.

Yi Chong No, a small thin man, who stated that he had been chief of the general staff of the army, accused the police of having beaten him as a means of forcing him to make incriminatory statements. The defendant's wife was in the position of the money collector for the independence movement. Kim Chai Sun was sentenced to two years for having obtained money under false pretenses and for inventing a story about the "Righteous Army" in Japan which was supposed to be ready to help the Koreans to win back their independence. Kwak Han was given one and a half years for helping to organize the "righteous army," and Yi Chong No six months for conspiracy against the government.

IS RESCUED AT LAST FROM TOMB IN MINE

Thomas Tosheskey Walks Into Open Air Early Today After Spending a Week Imprisoned Under Ground.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Centuria, Pa., Oct. 4.—Thomas Tosheskey, prisoner since Friday of last week in a chamber of the Continental mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, walked into the open air a free and comparatively well man twenty-two minutes before eight this morning. He was taken to his home in Pottsville, three miles away from his underground prison, and at once put to bed apparently none the worse for his remarkable experience.

Taken From Tunnel. It was in the last of the coal was driven away and the man crawled out of the opening of the prison chamber into the tunnel which had been driven toward him by eager and willing workers. Seven minutes later the first indication was given that the outside world that he had been in was completed and the prisoner was free. This was when a miner crawled to the mouth of the tunnel and called at the top of his lungs for blankets and hot water to be sent down. At 7:33 o'clock of morning the head of the mine pit held the appearance of the hero of the occasion. Tosheskey came from his prison with a miner just back of him ready with hand upraised to assist in his escape. He walked with agility seemingly none the worse for his experience.

Starts Aways Unaided.

When he stepped onto the wooden platform just outside of the narrow tunnel and was about to stand up, he paused for an instant and then started up the steep, muddy path which led to the open of the mine breach. His miner's cap was on his head and the lamp was still burning.

The most noticeable thing about him was his pallor which shone through the grime on his face contrasting strangely with the other black faces of other miners around him whose ruddy color showed even through the coal dust. Tosheskey climbed up the path to the head of the pit almost unaided. Stretchers had been brought and there were plenty of willing hands to carry him, but he would have none of it. His whole attitude from the time of his rescue until he was put to bed was one of a semi-stolidity.

Entombed Once Before.

Tosheskey was glad to get out of prison but he appeared as if it were an old story to him and nothing over which to make a grand gesture. He had been in his career as a miner he had been entombed for forty-eight hours. Half way up the path he stopped and posed for a photograph together with Dr. H. G. Fortner, who had been in almost constant touch with him since communication was established Tuesday night and to whom is largely due the good health of the man.

Tosheskey wore the broadest smile of anyone in the vicinity. He greeted everybody with "Hello," and in reply to inquiries as to how he felt answered, "Bully."

ITALIAN IS SOUGHT FOR BRUTAL MURDER OF NEW YORK BABY

Undertaker Brings Battered Body to Police, Telling Tale of Coercion by Gunman.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Oct. 4.—The battered body of a fair-haired little girl, killed by a blow in the head, lay in the Harlem morgue today while the New York police sought Joseph De Puma, a notorious Italian gun man, as her slayer.

The child's body was brought to the morgue in a macaroni box last night by Ralph Fasina, an undertaker, who told a terrible tale of having been coerced at pistol point to go to the gun man's flat and remove the body.

In the flat he saw a blond woman weeping. When detectives reached the flat later she was gone and with her the gun man.

The theory advanced was that the little girl had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom. There is no police record, however, of a child of that description being missing. The undertaker was held today pending further investigation of the matter. He says the gun man told him that he was whipped the child as she had begged for water at night.

Identify Body.

The mystery surrounding the murder of a golden haired child of three years yesterday began to clear today with the identification of the body. The arrest of the baby's mother and the sounding of a general police alarm for the apprehension of the man from whose flat the body was taken.

The child was identified as Lulu Salerno, while her mother, Mrs. Salerno, was the grandmother. Mrs. Roebert told the police that her daughter, Lulu's mother, had quarreled with her husband, Michael Salerno, a barber at Columbia university, and left him a year ago to live with another man. Lulu, she said, was one of the three children that was taken by Mrs. Salerno when the home was broken up.

Mrs. Salerno last left her mother's home, according to the mother, a month ago with two men. One of them, Mrs. Roebert said, was Tony Fisher, over whom Mrs. Salerno and her husband had quarreled; the other was Joseph De Puma, a Puma and Fletcher, Mrs. Roebert declared, and named the same flat. It was from this flat that the child's body was taken to the morgue.

The police asserted this afternoon that Mrs. Salerno was living at the flat when the child was taken. Mrs. Salerno was hysterical when arrested this afternoon.

"That is one of Barnes' habitual lies," said Col. Roosevelt. "There has been no agreement whatever with reference to Justice Seabury." Commenting on the fact that he had omitted from his set speech delivered at a banquet in his honor last night, reference to the Panama canal zone and complimentary allusions to Brazil, Chili and Argentine republics—the countries he is not to visit—Col. Roosevelt explained he had done so merely because he thought other things more important. The trip to South America will occupy seven days. The colonel will be joined there by his son, Kermit.

POLICE OF PRUSSIA DECIDE WHEN DARK OR DAYLIGHT COMES

Decision of Court Gives Them Automatic Power in Enforcement of Laws.—Population Decline.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Oct. 4.—It is dark in Prussia whenever the police say it is dark. The mere fact that it may happen still to be daylight in defiance of police orders is of no importance.

This is the decree of the Prussian supreme court in an appeal taken by a truck owner accused of driving at night without a lantern on his wagon. The law prescribes that a lantern must be carried by such vehicles at night, and the police have decreed that it is dark thirty minutes after the sun sets. The defendant admitted that he had driven after the prescribed time without a lantern, but contended that it was still light. Two witnesses permitted him to prove his contention and the court decided the police, the lower courts held, have no power to set a certain time when it shall be considered dark. The actual conditions must govern in each case.

The supreme court has reversed this decision upon appeal by the prosecutor and imposed a fine on the offender.

An analogous ruling has been made in an action for damages, brought by a tenant of 120,000, or one who had fallen in a dark hallway and injured himself. The landlord pleaded that the house had not yet arrived when, by police regulation, hall lights must be lighted. The plaintiff offered proof that it was quite dark when the accident happened. The proof was excluded as irrelevant. The police said the court had decided that it was dark at a specified hour, and that settled it.

Population's Growth Checked.

A decided check in the growth of Germany's population, most alarming to the military apostles of the empire is shown by the statistics for 1911, which have just been published. The surplus of births over deaths fell from 8578,000 in 1910 to 740,000 in 1911, a shrinkage in the rate of birth of 120,000, or one 15 percent. This marked retardation in the growth of the nation was due both to a reduction in the number of births and an increase in the death rate.

Despite an increase in marriages from 496,396 to 512,819 the total number of births for the empire dropped from 1,982,836 in 1910 to 1,927,039 in 1911, while on the other hand, the number of deaths rose from 1,108,723 to 1,187,000, an increase of more than 78,000. This increase in mortality is attributed chiefly to the extraordinary heat and drought which prevailed during the summer of 1911 and under which infants suffered with particular severity.

Almost a third of the deaths, 359,422, during the year, were of children one year old, some 48,000 babies more than in 1910 succumbing to the high death rate for children in their first year, from 15.2 in 1910 to 19.2 in 1911. The general death rate too, after a steady decline for a number of years, rose to 18.2 per 1,000 as compared with 17.1 in 1910.

Summed up, the statistics show that other than the net surplus of births over deaths per thousand of population was only 11.3 in 1911, as against 13.6 in 1910 and 14.9 for 1906. These figures also show that the death rate almost 30 percent of the illegitimate children died before reaching their first birthday.

URGENT DEFICIENCY BILL PASSES SENATE

Quorum Finally Secured to Put Through Measure Which Abolishes Commerce Court.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Oct. 4.—Securing the attendance of a voting quorum by a narrow margin, the senate today passed the urgent deficiency appropriation bill carrying the house provision abolishing the commerce court. An amendment retaining the five commerce court judges on the circuit court bench until they resigned or retired was added to the provisions, however, following a filibuster by supporters of the amendment.

WOULD STOP SULZER FROM TAKING STAND

ATTORNEYS MAY NOT BE ABLE TO PREVENT HIM FROM TAKING ACTION.

WOULD BE A MISTAKE

Leaders of Prosecution Hope That He Will Decide To Undergo Cross-Examination.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Albany, Oct. 4.—Although the opening of the case of the defense in the Sulzer impeachment trial is only two days away and the governor is as determined to take the stand as ever, he has not yet convinced his counsel that this is the wise course. Some of them are said still to entertain the hope that they can convince the governor that if he opens the way for cross-examination by counsel for the board of managers, he will make a big mistake.

Asked today at what stage of the proceedings the governor would be introduced, D. Cady Herriek, his chief counsel said, "I am not saying that he will testify."

Counsel for the board of managers are convinced, however, that all the advice of his counsel and all their pleadings will be futile, now that he has decided to testify. Several of them remained here from the time court adjourned last Thursday, until today, arranging their cross-examination.

GINK AND DINK. AS A GROUCH, DINK CAN'T BE BEAT.

GREAT INFIELDER ON CHAMPION NINES

ATHLETIC HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR INFILDER OUTCLASSES NEW YORK MEN.

LUCK A GREAT FACTOR

History of Past Games Shows Plenty of Errors and Bad Baseball on Part of Contesting Teams.

New York, Oct. 4.—A well-known big league manager said recently that in his opinion more games were won and lost on the infield than in any other department of baseball. Few will contradict the assertion, and it is quite likely that victory will hang, to a considerable extent, upon the play of the Giants' and Athletics' infielders during the coming world's series between the New York and Philadelphia clubs. The Athletics' $100,000 infield is one that commands respect and admiration in baseball circles, but if their statements are to be believed, McGraw has not tried to put a financial figure on his four infielders, but he is known to be as well satisfied with his combination as a baseball manager can be.

Past Performances.—What these men did in 1911, their past performances in the six games of that series, are of unusual significance and bearing on the present contest.

The first game of the series of 1911 was played October 14 on the Polo Grounds, scene of this year's first encounter, before a crowd the like of which had never seen a baseball game before. There were 38,281 spectators. The day was brilliant, with the tang of autumn in the air. When the New York players trotted out on to the field in their black uniforms, with a touch of white here and there, they were greeted with a roar of welcome such as had never arisen in a ball park before. The Athletics, clad in their customary grayish red traveling uniforms, were welcomed almost as warmly.

On a diamond, sleeked and groomed to perfection, the two teams played a 2 to 1 game, New York scoring the winning run in the seventh inning when Meyers clouted the ball to left field for two bases and scored on Devore's two-bagger. Mathews and Bender were the opposing pitchers.

Veterans Meet Again.—Veterans of the memorable struggle between the Giants and Athletics for the world's championship in 1911—whom the Athletics won by four games to two—will form the backbone of the two teams when they face each other again in a world's series on the afternoon of October 7. Of the fourteen Athletics who went on the diamond in the world's series games of 1911, thirteen are in the list of twenty-five which Connie Mack has prepared as eligible for the forthcoming games. Lord is the only man who played in 1911 who will not play on Philadelphia's team this year. Twelve of the fifteen players who fought for New York in 1911 will fight for it again in 1913. The absentees are Ames and Devore, traded to Cincinnati, and Becker, released. The world's series of 1913 will, therefore, be, in large measure, a contest between the same men who engaged in the series of 1911.

Marquard Defeated.—The second game was played at Philadelphia, October 18. Marquard took the slab for the Giants. Plank for the Athletics. Crandall supplanted Marquard in the eighth inning after John Franklin Baker had lifted one of Marquard's curves in the seventh over the right-field fence for a home run, breaking the tie. Plank was easily master of the New York batters and the game was Philadelphia's, 3 to 1.

Philadelphia won the third game also, played in New York the following day, by a score of 3 to 2. This duel of pitchers—Mathews and Coombs—lasted eleven innings. Philadelphia came from behind in the ninth on the second home run of the series, clouted by Baker. The score, 2 to 1, was the final score. Inning Baker scored the winning run.

With Philadelphia twice winner out of three games the series was interrupted by continued rainfall for a week. On October 24 the fourth game was played at Philadelphia. Mathews pitched again for the Giants. Bender for the Athletics. The Athletics won, 4 to 2, and needed but one more game to clinch the title of world's champions.

Marquard and Coombs were the opposing pitchers in the fifth game, played in New York the following day, October 25. The attendance fell off nearly 5,000, reflecting the sentiment that the Giants were doomed to defeat. But, contrary to the wise advice, New York won, after a ten-inning battle, by 4 to 3.

The sixth and last game was played in Philadelphia, October 28. Philadelphia took the snap out of the Giants' vigorous opening and won by the lopsided score of 13 to 2. Ames, Wittie, Marquard and Crandall sought in vain to break up the Athletics' batting line. Before Bender's curves the Giants were practically powerless.

years ago, but Fletcher has greatly improved since that time, while Barry has not done more than hold his own. This season the records of the two players show that in their respective leagues Fletcher has been batting better than Barry. As a base stealer and scorer of runs the Giants' shortstop has also had the edge on Connie Mack's player. It would appear as though the Giants had an advantage here and close to an even break at second base. At the two other stations the Athletics are the stronger. The batting records of the infield players for 1913, and batting and fielding records in the world's series of 1911 follow:

Infield Defeated Giants.—Still, the fact remains that all the figures available regarding the world's series of 1911 and season's play this year point to the Athletics' infield quartet composed of McInnes, Collins, Baker and Barry as superior to Merkle, Doyle, Herzog, Shaffer and Fletcher, considered as a whole. In the combination which helped defeat the Giants two years ago McInnes had no part, being on the bench with Marquard, which was just gaining strength after being broken. Harry Davis, the veteran, who took his place, proved a most acceptable substitute, but with McInnes on the initial bag, as he will be when the present series opens, the Athletics' infield is certain to be stronger than it was in 1911. Shaffer has held down the position for the Giants in place of Herzog most of the season and will probably alternate with Herzog, according to the style of pitching to be faced. Aside from these shifts and substitutions the line-up will be the same as two years ago when the Athletics won the world's championship with four games out of six.

McInnes is Star.—This being the case, the figures available should prove the best means of affording a comparison between the quartets which will work for the Athletics and Giants. Merkle and McInnes will be the rival first basemen, and McInnes appears to have a decided advantage over the Giants' initial sack gardian. Merkle is not as finished a player as McInnes, but possesses greater speed on the bases. In batting, the Athletics' star outshines Merkle. He is also more aggressive and covers more ground around first base. Doyle outplayed Merkle during the 1911 clash, yet McInnes held the bag up to the point in the season when he broke his wrist. It is reasonable to suppose that Mack considered him the better player of the two.

Collins is Superior.—Moving to second base, Captain Larry Doyle is found to be opposed by Eddie Collins. The Giants' field leader is a high-class player, but Collins is ranked as one of the most famous second basemen of baseball. At no time during the title struggle in 1911, however, did Collins outplay Doyle. Whether the latter can duplicate this feat is doubtful. His recent three players must be considered. For the Athletics, John Franklin Baker, of Louis run fame, is the sole candidate. He will play against both Herzog and Shaffer in all probability since each is likely to see service before the series is completed. Baker outlived and outplayed Shaffer and Herzog in batting this season, but in Shaffer he will find a hard opponent than Herzog proved two years ago.

WILKINSON SURE OF BERTH ON LAWRENCE COLLEGE

According to a statement found in the weekly issue of the Lawrence college weekly, "The Laurentian," "Shorty" Wilkinson will be found as a regular on the College eleven this fall, and he will be pitted against Wisconsin at Madison today. His showing this season is short of marvelous and indications in the northern camp are that he may play tackle instead of guard, as was his position last fall. If he plays at left tackle, it will mean that he will oppose Butler, varsity All-American tackle, and local followers will be anxious to learn just what kind of work he will do, when he faces this sort of material.

He is weighing 185 pounds at present. At the opening of the season there was such good material prevailing at Lawrence, that many of the regulars, including Wilkinson, were worrying for fear of losing their positions, but the worry is about over now.

TEAM IS PREPARED TO MEET EDGERTON

Contest is Now in Doubt, As Local Substitutes Enter Struggle—Rousing Sendoff.

If the regulars on the local high school eleven could be given the privilege of entering the opening game with Edgerton at that place today, local fans could rest that Edgerton would put by a large score before Janesville. But such is not the case. Substitutes comprised more than half the lineup, and even at that, Curtis had hopes that the score would be in the locals' favor at the close of the battle.

After a lightning signal drill in the gymnasium last evening the eleven feel more confident than ever, and are determined to start the season right. Some gloom was lost last night, when it was learned, that Dearborn may play. His work was made up, it is thought, and this bit of information has increased confidence in the eyes of the students as well as the team.

The squad left at ten-thirty this morning, together with a hundred rooters. The game was scheduled to start promptly at two-thirty, to enable the team to return on the forty train. The lineup as announced before the team's departure this morning is as follows: Badger, 1 c.; Amerphol, 1 t.; McCulloch, 1 g.; Mount, c.; Schenk, r. s.; Jones, r. b.; Pond and Roberly, r. e.; Hayes, q. b.; Atwood, 1 h.; Stewart, r. h.; Smiley, f. b.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"The proper way for a man to pray," said Deacon Lemuel Keyes, "is down upon his knees."

"No, I should say the way to pray," said Reverend Doctor Wise, "is standing straight, with outstretched arms, and rapt and upturned eyes."

"Oh, no; no, no," said Elder Slow, "Such posture is too proud. A man should pray with eyes fast closed and head contritely bowed."

"It seems to me his hands should be austere clasped in front, with both thumbs pointing toward the ground," said Reverend Doctor Blunt.

"Last year I fell in Hodgkin's well head first," said Cyrus Brown, "With both my heels a-stickin' up, My head a-pintin' down."

"An I made a prayer right then an' there," Best prayer I ever said, The prayingest prayer I ever prayed, A-standing on my head."
—Sam Walter Foss.

This homely analysis of prayer covers several conditions, so far as attitude is concerned, but it is safe to assume that "Cyrus Brown" was the most devout because of his dire extremity.

There are many mistaken notions about prayer because the belief is common that this sacred rite belongs exclusively to the church, but such is not the case.

The closest and best definition of prayer on record is contained in the first line of the old hymn, which reads:

"Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, uttered or unexpressed," and the emphasis is on the sincerity.

"Cyrus Brown" was sincere, and while exhausting every effort to extricate himself, and thus answer his own petition, it is safe to assume that he gave audible expression by shouting lustily for help as soon as he was in position to do so.

Prayer comes to the human family as a common inheritance, regardless of creed or environment. Every soul, everywhere, comes into existence, filled with want, and these wants find expression in supplication at the earliest dawn of consciousness.

Every hour of the day the baby in the cradle is aroused to action by some real or imaginary want, and its plaintive wail, or lusty scream expresses a sincere and persistent desire, which the mother recognizes and answers.

When the same sort of demonstrations disturb the quiet watches of the night, the father sometimes comes to the rescue, and while he paces the floor and chants a sleepy lullaby, in answer to the pleading thoughts which disturb his mind would hardly bear expression in cold type.

From the cradle to the nursery and the school room, and on through the years of childhood the life is dominated by wants, and the child is constantly praying to have these wants met. Many of these demands are unreasonable and so the prayer of the child is often unanswered, and the little mind, unable to reason, turns away, grieved and rebellious.

Prayer is the mainspring of ambition. It fills the mind of the boy and girl with hope when they stand at the gateway of life's busy arena, waiting for admission. If they have planned for a career they set about earnestly for the accomplishment and the sincere desire to win becomes absorbing.

They do not look for supernatural aid, but plan to work out their own salvation along the lines through which success is won, and reward is largely proportioned to personal effort and faithful persistency.

This definition of prayer would hardly pass muster in a school of theology, because it is so close to the ground that no vision is necessary to comprehend it, but prayer, like faith, is a common heritage. The church appropriates both and turns the thought Godward, and thus the soul is enabled to grasp the things unseen.

Every church has its attitude of prayer, and this is right, for church service without form would soon lose its sacredness. The boy who bows at his mother's knee and repeats the old time supplication, carries through life a simple attitude of prayer, and this simple attitude of prayer often becomes a habit which clings to him through life.

Two friends occupied a room together in Chicago, a time ago. One was a devout Catholic, and before retiring, knelt at the bedside, as was his custom, and offered a silent supplication. The other tumbled into bed without ceremony. His friend said to him: "Don't you ever pray?" And the answer came back: "No, I've forgotten how!" Then his friend said: "That's bad; why, every horse in my barn gets down on his knees before he lies down." Not a very strong argument, but showing the force of habit.

The prayer that is the most certain of satisfactory results, is the prayer which answers itself. It matters not how much the boy may long for success, or how much his friends may do for him, he must work out his destiny.

There are some things in life that may be framed out and delegated to others, but the things that count are within us, and unless we develop them, they will never be developed.

The trouble with many of us is that we want to commence life in the middle, and skip the long years of preparation, so necessary to success in any calling. We want the reward without the work.

We forget that the school is simply the primary department, and that education stretches on through the years, to the end of the journey. "Never too old to learn" is a trite old maxim. The farmer of fifty years' experience is just learning today, how to raise corn.

The realm of science is answering many petitions, in the material world, and these problems have been solved, not in any supernatural way, but by close personal application of the part of intelligent and faithful workers.

Many things which we enjoy today would seem miraculous, if sprung upon the world suddenly, but they have come to us through gradual development, and evolution has followed instead of revolution.

The church has come to realize that work and prayer go together with the emphasis on work, and so many petitions are being answered by faithful workers.

The good Lord wants us to help ourselves and in the hour of dire extremity He has promised to be with us.

Wear Livestock of Heaven.
"With most of the uplifters one lift is for the public and two for themselves," says the Baltimore Sun, Yes, and of the three lifts the last two are the most important with them.—Milwaukee News.

Point Often Overlooked.
Many persons who locate on land give themselves much unnecessary hardship by not knowing the advantage of a good consuming market which can be reached without dealing through a trust. The wise settler aims to be near a good market.—Superior Telegram.

Precarious Support.
An Appleton professor has just announced that the proceeds of a book of poetry he has just published will all go to charity. If the book has no greater use than some other book of poetry that might be mentioned, the charitable institutions of Appleton will not have occasion to go out of business.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

Encouraging For Janesville.
The city of Menomonie is discussing municipal ownership of the water works plant and Mayor Mathews says there is a general demand for the purchase. There is also an agitation for a municipal hospital, the cost $15,000. We do not know about city owned hospitals, but can demonstrate that a water works system owned and operated by a city with a commission form of government can be and is a successful undertaking.—Dan Claire Telegram.

Need Vigilant Supervisor.
Fond du Lac county next year is to spend $100,000 for good roads. The way Wisconsin is going ahead in spending money for good roads is nothing less than stupefying when one remembers how little or nothing has been spent for them such a very few years ago. It is to be hoped that the pace is not too rapid and that the money will be well spent, but there is considerable reason for apprehension on this score.—Appleton Post.

Progress in Varieties.
Progression may be forward, sideways or lengthwise, or even backward. There is no limit to the angles, sinuities, spurs and digressions, using a mining parlance. The field is only limited by the ingenuity of men, by the perversions of ideas, by pure freckism, and then crankism. Progression in its more rightful meaning, is the order of the universe, and it by no means is reactionary if more calm minds desire to only secure the best, reject the worst, and make better working what may be of substantial merit. As has been seen the work of a pronounced body of Progressives, thus assuming a differentiation from other men, has not successfully produced in the improved or better, what is the wisest, the most feasible and the most workable. One trouble has been in an intolerance not justified.—Racine Journal-News.

Well Worth Noting.
Priests and ministers are human beings like the rest of us. The daily press is full of scandals regarding them, but that is no reason for condemning any creed. Even Jesus had among his chosen a Judas. Every society and every community has a hypocrite, a Judas or a black sheep of some kind. Let us see to it that our own lives do not harbor some evil thought which may destroy us.—Hayward Republican.

To all of which we say amen. When a crime is committed, if the perpetrator happens to be a priest, minister, Chinaman, Italian, Socialist or member of a labor union, why should that fact be paraded in the head lines? Criminal tendency is not a matter of nationality, occupation or religious or political belief, and these facts have no more relation to the crime than the color of hair or the size of the criminal's shoe.—Rusk County Journal.

EXPERIMENT

The Diary of a Bonehead.
Shortly after the Spanish-American war, a gentleman with a liquid voice called at my pleasant yet modest home in the suburbs and sold me a piano for $100.00. It was a piano, a piano, a piano.

The purchase of the horseless piano which was a novelty in those days, marked a new era in our social status. We jumped from Class 1 to Class 2, as soon as the piano was moved in. That was before the days of the automobile and society lines were not drawn between the six-cylinder and four-cylinder classes. The horseless piano set resigned supreme.

When the piano was moved in, I down and $1 every time the collector could catch me by the coat tail. The collector was a young gentleman with a red necktie and the only time he was at my elbow asking for his dollar was when I was asleep in my bedroom with the door locked. It seemed as though I met him every morning on the front step as I left home for the office and found him waiting for me when I returned.

While other people were buying buzz wagons I was still paying for my piano and we had gradually slumped back to Class 4. The piano itself had worn out four years before it was sold for $10.00. The red necktie haunted me in my dreams and in the meantime the collector had grown older and raised a family so that he collected more strenuously than ever.

Yesterday he called for the last time and received his final dollar. He wanted to sell me a new player piano and offered to allow me $1.85 for the old one. He said he could sell the wires to a telephone company and get that much out of it, but I turned him away.

My wife is going to have a new pair of rubbers and I am going to have a new set of teeth before we begin buying anything else on the installment plan.

Colonel Beebe Says:
You can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make him drink; surround a fool with wisdom, but you cannot make him think. You show an ingrate kindness and get injured for your pains. You can dress a dude in fashion, but you can't give him brains. You can bring the rich to justice, but it takes a lot of time. While the poor man goes to prison, the rich one pays a fine. If you study human nature, you'll find freaks of every strain. Some you see excel in stature, others great in nerve or brain. You'll find lots of faults to criticize—perhaps, some traits to praise; but it's just as Nature made us guys. That explains our funny ways. Don't get too close to the buzz saw or tickle a mule that's tame. Don't give advice to those in love or bet on another man's game.

SCRIPTURE
Proverbs, 18th Chapter—verses 1 to 9.

Through desire a man, having separated himself, seeketh and intermeddeth with all wisdom.

A fool hath no delight in understanding, but that his heart may discover itself.

When the wicked cometh, then cometh also contempt, and with ignominy reproach.

The words of a man's mouth are as deep waters, and the wellspring of wisdom is as a flowing brook.

It is not good to accept the person of the wicked, to overthrow the righteous in judgment.

A fool's lips enter into contention, and his mouth calleth for strokes. A fool's mouth is his destruction, and his lips are the snare of his soul.

The words of a talebearer are as wounds, and they go down into the innermost parts of the belly.

He also that is slothful in his work is brother to him that is a great waster.

"Forget It."
If any desire becomes insatiable—and the desire to succeed may become so—there may result the most exhausting emotions. Frequent despair and depression, irritability and unreasonable anger may be frequent with a man who is unduly anxious to attain what he calls success. He will think too much about his mistakes unless some one cares to say to him, or he can say to himself, "Forget it!"

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous lining.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness cured by our method. Send for our circular, free.

When weather is confounded hot, I do not seek the sea; I find the old accustomed spot is STAYING HOME good enough for the land midwinter wind I seek no warmer climes; I stay at home and do my grind, and earn some wooden dimes.

In other days I used to flee when things unpleasant came; and things unpleasant tortured me, and bored me just the same. I left my home to dodge the heat that sizzled from the sun, and where I went the water lay upon me by the ton. I went away when winter shows its snowflakes in my eyes, and when I had to swat mosquitoes, bugs and flies. To forests, mountains, streams and lakes at times I used to roam, and always found them tiresome fakes compared with my old home. There is no paradise on earth—smoke that in your cigar; there is no place where joy and mirth and peace unbroken are. If things at home should make you curse and fill your breast with woe, you'll doubtless find that things are worse where you propose to go. If you refuse to mope and brood, your griefs will have an end, and fortune or longitude cuts any ice, my friend.

VALUATION EXCEEDS SEVENTY MILLIONS

ROCK COUNTY IS ASSESSED AT FOUR MILLION MORE THAN LAST YEAR.

REAL ESTATE RAISED

More Than Two Thirds of Raise on This Class of Property—Figure Is $2,720,433.

More than four million dollars has been added to the valuation of Rock county by the assessment of 1913, the tabulation of which has just been completed by County Clerk Howard Lee. The exact figure of the valuation is $72,314,236, which is $4,149,451 more than last year's assessment, $68,164,785. Approximately two-thirds of this increase is on real estate, the valuation of this class of property being $59,578,500 as compared with last year's figure of $55,758,072 a raise of $3,820,428. Personal property is valued at $12,734,730, which is $1,329,018 more than the last valuation, $11,405,712. Farming lands are valued at $33,670,516, $2,008,875 more, and lots with their improvements at $24,907,980, $3,816,558 more than last year.

Personal Property.
Real and personal property and franchise of water and light companies is assessed at $1,690,213, an increase of $356,022 over the last valuation. Leaf tobacco has decreased from $1,131,857 to $1,039,591. Horses have increased in number from 12,149 to 13,149 and in value from $1,556,751 to $1,647,597. Cattle have decreased from 46,567 to 46,229 but risen in value from $1,232,958 to $1,424,204. No mules and asses are on the assessment rolls, which value $19,555. It is indicated that the state wishes to encourage the raising of this class of stock. The assessment totals show a marked decrease in the number of sheep; this year's figure was 9037 compared with 12,006 a year ago, while the value has dropped from $49,397 to $36,552. There are 26,380 swine in the county, 1,614 less than last year but their value—$236,390—is greater than last year by $55,633.

Automobiles.
More than three hundred automobiles have been added to the assessment rolls, the total for the county being 1658, and their value $519,609 as compared with $375,252 last year. Wagons, carriages, and sleighs would seem to have suffered from the increase in the number of automobiles for according to the assessors figures there has been a drop from 10,441 to 9,240, and their value—$19,555—is $18,433 less than a year ago. Steam and other vessels have increased from 63 to 72 and in value from $7,200 to $11,110. There are 34 motor-cycles valued at $4,555. Logs and lumber are assessed at $450.

Merchants and Manufacturers.
Figures for merchants and manufacturers' stocks are not yet final for the reason that one assessor appears to have given his valuation under wrong heads and verification has not yet been made. They will total $3,286,097 as compared with $3,138,497, last year's figures. Bank stocks are assessed at $1,425,448, $74,066 in excess of the former estimate. All other personal property, worth $1,022,760, last year's figure being $787,713.

BLAZE THREATENED DOWNTOWN STORES

Fire in Barn at Rear of Douglas Store On River Street Checked in Time Friday Night.

Fire, probably started by some vagrant sleeping among the hay in the old brick barn of the Janesville Electric company situated in the rear of the Douglas hardware store on South River street, threatened to spread to the stores in the immediate vicinity of Milwaukee street bridge at twenty o'clock Friday night. Prompt work by the fire department checked the flames before any serious damage could be done.

The fire was discovered by Theodore Hiller and William Kahn, employes of the postoffice, who saw a blaze from the postoffice steps. After turning in the alarm they hastened to the barn and rescued two horses that were in the lower story of the building. It is said the fire had been burning for a considerable time before the department arrived as the whole interior of the structure was in flames. One lead of horse was attached to the River street hydrant and the building was flooded. The damage suffered was only nominal, the large amount of hay or grain stored in the barn at the time and both of the horses were taken out before the fire had reached the stalls.

Benjamin Barrows, driver on one of the wagons from number two station, was injured in jumping from the wagon and was taken to his home in an automobile.

Shortly after six o'clock last evening the department was called to the foot of Lincoln street, where some underbrush had caught fire and was spreading in a dangerous manner. No damage was done.

CASE AGAINST CLARK ADJOURNED A MONTH

Agrees to Leave County and Go to Work—Attorney Edwin Carpenter Makes Plea.

On the motion of his attorney, Edwin F. Carpenter, and with the consent of District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, James Clark was this morning granted an adjournment of his trial on the charge of being a habitual drunkard, until November 1. Attorney Carpenter was confident that if the case came to trial he could clear his client of the charge of being drunk last Saturday night, but thought it best to save the county the expense of a trial if possible. Clark stated that he expected to get a job as painter in Ft. Atkinson and if he was disappointed there he would go to Michigan to work in a sugar factory operated by a man under whom he had formerly worked in the local factory. He agreed to leave Janesville by this evening. Judge Maxfield informed him that if he ever came back to Janesville and was found idle or intoxicated he would be brought up on the charge against him, conviction on which would mean a sentence of from one to three years in state's prison. With the departure of Clark the county jail is left without a single occupant.

MAKE SEARCH FOR BOY RUNAWAYS FROM MADISON

In response to a message received from the Madison police members of the Janesville police force last night searched a freight train for two boys who had left their homes in the Capital City, and were better described "beating" their way to Chicago on stock freight No. 578. They were described as being sixteen and seventeen years of age. One is William Sholt who is of a slender build, wore a gray and white striped shirt. The other boy had the surname of Griffith, but no description of him was given. Patrick Fanning questioned the men in charge of the train but they reported seeing no strangers and said that if the boys had been on themselves it must have been in some of the hay boxes on top of the cars.

The old members of the Philotaxian Literary society of the high school were given a banquet last evening at the school by the new members, voted into the society this year. SideLights On The Circus Business By D. W. WATT

The best indicator that I know of that there is a bumper cotton crop in the south this fall is the fact that both the large and the small shows seem to be all reporting that way, and the white tops will soon be showing in every important city and town. The circus trains are being hurried into southern territory to take advantage of the plentiful money that is in sight from the cotton crop, which this year will be one of the best on record. This week the Barnum and Bailey show is at Danville, Va., the Ringlins are at Shreveport, La., the Hugoback and Wallace show is at New Orleans, the Cossack show is at Port Scott, Kans., and Sells-Floto at Louisville, Ky., and it is fair to say that the advance men of all these different shows have been watching the cotton crop all the big clock of the cotton crop all the season.

An agreement has been signed by Roy Chandler, the South American manager, with Edward Arlington, for the sending to South America of a complete Wild West show with all appointments, blue seats, reserved seats, grand stand chairs and boxes, to seat 3,500; flags, a canopy to cover all seats, sidewalk, scenery, tent, properties, wagons, draft horses for wagon and wagons, steam calliope and lithographs.

Mr. Arlington also is to furnish ten Indians, eight cowboys, six cowgirls, twenty horses and four bucking horses, a ten piece cowboy band, two Mexicans, two Cossacks, gunpowder used in the performance, horse feed, steers used in the show and arms. The program is to include steer lassoing, horse lassoing, broncho busting, stage coach attack, wagon train, fancy rope spinning, sharpshooting, auto polo and other Wild West acts. The engagement is for six months, commencing at Japanese Park, Buenos Ayres, Argentina December 1st, with the option for six months longer.

In 79 with the Burr Robbins Show after making many of the smaller towns in the northern and western part of Illinois and the show in Illinois and from there we were to cross the river into Iowa and show at Sabula the following day. At that time there were no large bridges spanning the river and a small wooden trestle bridge was worked with a rope and that had done service there for many years was the only way for us to cross the river into Iowa.

Early in the evening a light rain commenced to fall and although it did not rain hard it kept it up for most of the night. As soon as the evening performance had commenced we took down the manager and moved the cages down to the river bank where we commenced to send them across the river. On account of the primitive way of getting over we knew that it would be an all night job and some of the large wagons it was possible to take at a time. Some time after midnight I declared myself and said that things were not going nearly as fast as they should and that we would never get over to Sabula to show the next day if they did not move faster.

The old captain of the ferry boat, who looked as though he might have come there ahead of civilization, looked at me and said, "I was at your show all the afternoon and once did I even mention how you should run it, I know all about this transportation," and it was well night 9 o'clock in the morning before the last wagon crossed the river. More than fifty croaking men and boys were piled in the night on that river in the mud and rain and this was one trip long to be remembered in the wagon show business of Burr Robbins.

More than fifty croaking men and boys were piled in the night on that river in the mud and rain and this was one trip long to be remembered in the wagon show business of Burr Robbins.

When Col. Cody strode over to the center ring and lifted his sombrero in salutation, the audience rose en masse and gave him a greeting that would have made an emperor blush. The cheering and applause rattled and rolled under the big top like a continuous rattaplan of musketry. It was repeated again and again despite the fact that the old scout waved his hand in the air and begged silence, that he should be heard.

When the ovation in some measure subsided, Colonel Cody said in part: "I need not say to you, my friends of Detroit, to the ladies and gentlemen, and to my little children, that I am the object of such a tremendous expression of good will and loving regard."

"I know that nearly every paper in the country has recently told the story of how I have been wiped off the map, and I have passed out as a factor in the show business. I am here today as a victor and it is at the request of my friends and the justice to them that I came here in my own person to assure you that the stories you read were without foundation."

"Thirty years I have been helping to entertain you here in Detroit. Your patronage has always been as liberal and generous as was your kindly manifestation today. I don't know of any city that has continued to give me more generous support, and I can't think of any place where I would be more in honor bound to come and assure you that even if my obituary had been written, I was resurrected."

"In the army when the white man was fighting the red man and during the stirring incidents of the Civil War, I became accustomed to ready my quarry about once a week. Nowadays I have become such an unimportant person that the newspapers kill me off only about twice a year."

"But as I said, you can see for yourselves I am a long way from the danger line and I know you will be glad to learn that for next season I have formed a combination with my good friends, Messrs. Tammien and Enbels, owners of this, the Sells-Floto circus, and together next season we will combine my own original production of western scenes and incidents staged in a manner regardless of expense, and delightfully elaborated, with the full performance of the Sells-Floto circus as it is entertaining

TURKEY

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

TURKEY.... By George Fitch.
Turkey is a large slice of the middle ages in a state of almost perfect preservation. It is located in full retreat at the western end of Europe and also extends over the eastern end of Asia. There are 1,570,000 square miles in Turkey, or were before Balkan states began carving it. If the officials of Turkey had been half as square as the masses the country would have gotten along better.
Turkey is a very old country and smells like it. It began to get amiable in 800 B. C., and by the nineteenth century has spread up the Danube.

Rye—61 1/2@61.
Barley—51@55.

The capital of Turkey is Constantinople, which is a city of over 1,000,000 people and 7,000,000 dogs situated at the jumping off place of Europe. Other Turkish cities are Damascus, Smyrna and Bagdad, all of which were great and flourishing cities long before the calendar was reversed and started forward in the year 1 A. D.
The Turkish people consist of two classes—workers and officials. The laboring Turk is honest and very industrious. Because of this he is able to support the official class and even at times to support himself. The easiest way to get rich in Turkey is to escape and come to America.
Turkey adheres to the Mohammedan form of religion which allows unlimited wives and does not interfere with politics or business. Turkey has given America the Hoochee Couchee dance, the Turkish bath and the Oriental rug, but has kindly retained the harem as an exclusively home feature.

Turkey was an absolute monarchy governed by a Sultan until a few years ago, when the young Turks arose and fired Abdul Hamid with a great bang. It is now a constitutional monarchy. Trying to find the constitution is the latest Turkish diversion.

Turkey has long been detested by Europe because of its playful habit of slicing up its Christian citizens with a similar on holidays and feast days. Because of this Europe has been slicing off Turkey a little at a time, preferring the white portions. However, no one has yet been found with courage enough to slice off Constantinople. The "O" in Irish Names.
It is a pity so many people here drop the Irish O, for it is a prefix of nobility that is the oldest in Europe, says the New York Tribune. Many of our best Dutch families in New York came here without a surname, but there is not a family in Ireland possessing a surname in O that has not borne that surname since at least the twelfth century. That is surely a distinction and proof of social standing that Ireland's fall from its high estate cannot obliterate.

Value Up--Price Down

The 1914 Overland is the most wonderful car of the new season. And the price is again reduced. Bigger, better and more beautiful than ever, it is already the biggest seller of its type in the world.

The motor is more powerful; the wheelbase longer; the tires larger; the tonneau more roomy; the equipment more complete, better and costlier than ever. In every respect Overland value has been increased while the price has been decreased.

The manufacturers have turned their enormous facilities over to the building of this one model. In no other way could such value be secured.

The production has been increased to 50,000 cars. There is an even stricter practice of the well known Overland manufacturing economies. And this means a greater car at less cost to you.

So finely drawn is the big 1914 Overland production plan that 50,000 cars will be built; 10,000 men will be kept busy all the year round; every wheel of the $4,000,000 worth of the most modern machinery kept in constant operation, and never a moment's hesitation permitted in a plant that covers more than 100 acres of ground.

This is the way the Overland makes possible a $1200 value for $950.

We have the Model 79 Overlands on our salesroom floor now. We urge you to see this new model at once. Ride in the car; feel what a difference the big 114-inch wheelbase makes; note the car's entirely changed appearance. It is neater, prettier than ever—and that means the handsomest car of the year.

The long wheelbase gives increased riding comfort.

The improved Overland motor is rated at 35 horsepower—plenty of power to give satisfying comfort and speed.

You'll find a most efficient and reliable electric lighting system on the new Overland. This costly addition to equipment is worthy a $1500 car.

The new Overland body has a handsome finish—beautiful, rich, dark Brewster green. The trimmings are of heavy nickel and aluminum. And the big, graceful cowl dash gives to the car an appearance of dignity vainly sought in many other cars of higher price.

Examine the spacious tonneau; note the big, soft, deep and luxurious folds of upholstery. The new Overland is bigger and better; we can show you point for point where it is the best you money can buy.

SPELLS OF WEAK KIDNEYS READ AND SEE WHY

Some People have Trouble with the Kidneys every Autumn. They become frightened when the Symptoms appear. There is a reason. It can be avoided.

During the month of October the kidneys are especially liable to become deranged.
The perspiration that has been going on since the previous month is at least partially stopped during October. The skin and the kidneys are very similar in their action. They both eliminate from the blood poisons. As is well known, the skin can act in place of the kidneys in a small degree, and vice versa. When one is affected the other is apt to be.
The sudden checking of perspiration during the month of October throws upon the kidneys the extra work of eliminating the blood poisons. This concentrates the poisons in the urine, which may set up an irritable condition in the kidneys, let's.

The concentrated acidity of the urine irritates the whole tract.
The crisp weather of October naturally increases the appetite. It requires some self control not to over eat during the first cold days. During the hot weather previously the amount of food consumed is much less than the appetite craves during October. This also tends to produce irritation of the kidneys by the excess of material in the blood.
Peruna is a gentle diuretic. It assists the kidneys in meeting the extra burden thrown upon them through October weather. It is well to take it, according to the directions on the bottle, during the whole month.
Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

AFRAID OF DOING TOO MUCH.

AT FIVE minutes of nine the other morning I met a little stenographer lady whom I knew just leaving the shopping district, about a half mile away from her office.

"Won't you be late?" I asked.

"Oh yes, I suppose I will," she said, cheerfully. "I stopped to do a little shopping. I often do. You see," she added, falling into step beside me with no appearance of haste whatever. "I don't get paid half what I ought and so I'm not going to work my head off. If I were paid properly I'd try to be prompt, but as it is I take my own time."

You can imagine, can't you, just how likely that little stenographer is to ever get "paid properly?"

And yet her attitude toward business is extremely common.

The fear of doing too much work is not confined to foolish, little rattle-brained stenographers. It is to be found everywhere—that is, everywhere in the ranks of the failures. The successful man is too busy and too fond of work for accomplishment's sake, and not merely for the sake of the money it brings, to be always weighing and balancing lest he give his employer overweight.

A man who is close to the top of the business ladder said to me the other day: "I never worked any harder in my life than I did when I was getting $6.00 a week. I often stayed at that office until 10 or 11 at night. The other boys would kick. They'd say they weren't going to work themselves to death for $6.00 a week. But I didn't work myself to death, and I didn't have to do it very long for $6.00 a week. Everywhere I've been I've done my best work, no matter what I made more progress, but so long as I stayed in any place I did my best work."

No man with that spirit and all brains at all could fail.

Of course it is not right for any man to continually give the full force of his brains and energy to an unappreciative and stingy employer. But the solution is not for the worker to become slack in his methods and do an inferior grade of work; that it hurts him as much as it does his employer.

He should make himself valuable, give his employers a chance to recognize and appreciate that value, and if they do not, find someone who will. There are always enough openings for a man who is willing to put the whole of himself into his work.

out peeling, in cubes, put into the sauce pan and cook with very little water, over the fire, or better still, in the steam cooker. When tender put through the colander, put back on the stove and cook until dry and rather dark in color. Press through the potato ricer, and to every pint of pumpkin add the given ingredients, beating the eggs well. Two or three tablespoonfuls of cream are a great addition.

Line the pan with rich pastry; push the bottom of this with white of an egg, all with the pumpkin mixture and bake in a moderate oven until done. The white of the egg prevents the pumpkin from soaking into the crust. Whipped cream and pecan nuts arranged over the top of the pie gives a new and attractive appearance, adding also to the taste. This may also be made in individual pans and garnished as above.

The KITCHEN CABINET

HE pity of it is that, so far as we are concerned, most of the beauty of this world goes to waste. We have no time to look at it and enjoy it."

NUTS INSTEAD OF MEAT.

Nuts have such a high place in the food and with many take the place of meats that a few recipes will be suggestive in planning menus.

A handful of nuts added to a cup of chopped cabbage and celery with a simple dressing makes a most wholesome salad.

Apples, which may be peeled, cored and stewed until nearly tender without losing their shape may then be decorated with quartered blanched almonds, put in like porcupine quills, sprinkle with powdered sugar and bake long enough to brown the almonds and finish the cooking of the apple. A little sirup poured around them while baking will be an addition and may be served with whipped cream around the fruit after it is well chilled.

Potato balls decorated with almonds and brushed with butter, then baked, are another most attractive looking dish.

Nut Fruit Cheese.—Add to a cupful of chopped hickory nut meats, a cup of dates, a half dozen figs, put through a meat chopper, six bananas, mashed, a cup of blanched and chopped almonds, salt, turn the mixture into a buttered mold, cover with buttered paper and steam for three hours. Turn out and when cold, cover with a meringue, brown and garnish—the dish when serving, with stuffed dates.

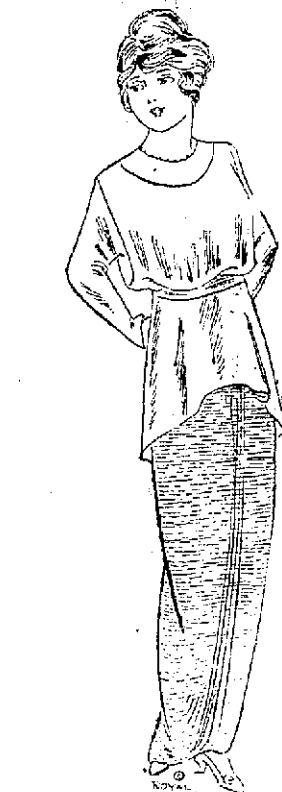

Nut stuffing for baked onions is delicious. Chop a cup of pecans, mix with a tablespoonful of butter and two of bread crumbs, add salt and stuff large par-baked onions whose centers have been removed with the nuts, and bake until the onions are perfectly tender, basting with butter and water.

Expensive Living in India.
Commercial travelers must expect to spend about $10 a day in India. Each man must carry much luggage, including his own bedding, for use on the trains, soap, towels and the like, possibly also his own food and supply of water.

Counting Molecules.
A French mathematician has tried to convey to our minds some notion of the infinitesimal size of the molecule. He declares that if a person were to try to count the number of molecules in a cubic millimeter of hydrogen gas, taking one-billionth of a second to repeat each number, the task would occupy him for more than 1,000 years.—Youth's Companion.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

The subject of poor, indifferent or no housekeeping has been discussed, argued and "bashed up." The time is here for reform! Or, is the time here for every woman—individually—to set herself to the solving of her own home-making, housekeeping?

Home-making and housekeeping can be, and are listed as two distinctly different phases of this problem; but to the most women it means this—To be able to run their home as well as they can, to purchase and prepare three nourishing meals each day that will be satisfying to all the members of the family; to do their work as systematically as possible and to not have the work run them; and last, but by no means the least, to stay inside their husband's income.

To not stay inside your husband's income is to court disaster—disaster certain and sure. It may be long in coming, but just as sure as the man who travels in a blind alley will eventually bump his head against the stone wall at the end, so will the woman who lives outside her husband's income know needless worry, grief and trouble. I say needless worry, grief and trouble, because with a little forethought it could have been avoided. So many of us create our own conditions and then turn and rail at everyone around us often at God—because they are not better.

We can always better our home conditions if we use what the business men use—efficient methods and system. Now don't say this efficiency talk is being overdone. Isn't it being neglected? How long would a factory continue to exist as a profitable concern if efficient methods were not put into practice in every line of the business?

Home-making is about the biggest business in the world today, and I think no one will dispute me when I say it can lay claim to as long a record as most other business concerns. Housework isn't the bleak, drab existence that it is so often painted, if we go at the work in a business-like way. Where we make our mistake is in thinking that our income is too small (Granted that it is small—pitifully so—that there are more little mouths to feed, more little feet to keep shod than you seem able to care for. If such is the case it is all the more reason why you should stop, take inventory of assets and liabilities and check any leak, or improve any faulty method that may exist, that is keeping you in debt or from obtaining a home of your own.

No matter what your income is, stay inside of it. Plan, manage so you can. Now I know that little things are continually cropping up in every home that are money-takers. When I say stay inside of your income I mean that, unless sickness or something out of the ordinary is taking your salary you should plan the spending of it so that you may have what is necessary, and still have a wee bit left.

This can be done. This is being done every day in the year all over this great land of ours. This land that is world-famous for its comfortable, well equipped, happy homes. It shimmers right down to a question of personal management. Are we women good managers? Do we spend recklessly or judiciously? Your answer!

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of sixteen. Am I too young to go clerking in a store?
(2)—Do you think I am too young to go with a fellow if he's not older than eighteen or nineteen years?
(3)—How can a whiten my hands; they are very dark?

GOLDEN HEART.

(1)—No.
(2)—If you don't allow any slushiness and will be just good friends, it would be very nice. Have other boy friends, too.
(3)—Try lemon juice to whiten them. Wash them often in bran water. At night rub any good hand lotion into the skin and put on clean gloves.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of sixteen and in love with a young man. I have kept company with him for three months. He comes to see me quite often and he seems to care for me very much. Do you think it is proper for me to keep steady company with him?
(2)—Give me a remedy for red cheeks.
(3)—You are too young to keep steady company with anybody, my dear. Be good friends with him, but have other good boy friends, too. When you are a few years older you will be better able to choose the kind of man you want for an husband. The right sort of man won't want you for a wife now, anyway.

(2)—If you have naturally red cheeks you should be a very happy girl, and not want to get rid of the color. If you mean that you are pale and want red cheeks, the best thing for you to do is to get outdoors and exercise a lot. Eat lots of blood-making food, drink plenty of milk and

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

SOME OCTOBER DISHES WHEN COOL DAYS WHET APPETITES

Change of temperature always means a change in foods that is, changing from hot to cool days, but still keeping in mind that our foods must be seasonable. Most of the summer travelers and vacationers are home getting satisfied for the cooler days of the autumn.

Our appetites are much keener than in the hot weather, when cooling drinks, salads and more dainty dishes are the foods we crave. But the real joy of food is from a healthy appetite which needs the frosty October days to have it right on edge and make pumpkin pies, doughnuts, and even young chicken, gingerbread and bread and butter taste as it never can at any other season of the year.

Why do we eat? Well, most people would tell us because they like food and it tastes good. True enough, but with that we should have one big object and that is "eat for efficiency."

A man's thoughts and purposes for the day are largely gauged by the food he eats.

So, in the enjoyment of good seasonable food properly cooked there is no doubt about its physical and mental effect upon us.

Material.—Cooked chicken, one cup; butter, one tablespoonful; chopped parsley, one tablespoonful; flour, two tablespoonfuls; cream, two tablespoonfuls; bay leaf, one-half, green pepper.

Directions.—Cut the cold chicken into dice, but do not chop it. Make the cream sauce with the milk, butter, flour, cream and bay leaf. When done, add the chicken, about two cupfuls, and heat well together. Have the tops of the peppers cut off; remove the stem and seeds. Soak the peppers in cold water for an hour, drain and fill with the cream chicken, cover the tops with buttered crumbs and set into ramekin or gem pans just large enough to hold them upright. Set them into a baking pan partly filled with hot water and bake fifteen minutes. Serve on a platter or chop plate and garnish with parsley and beets or any kind of boiled vegetable and vegetables suitable with a cream sauce.

Sweet Potatoes and Apples.
Materials.—Sweet potatoes, applesauce, sugar, butter.

Directions.—Boil sweet potatoes until tender, then peel and slice in small slices. Make a good applesauce, put a layer of potatoes into a baking dish, sprinkle with brown sugar and dot with bits of butter. Next put in a layer of applesauce and then continue as before until the dish is filled. Finish the top with potatoes, more butter and sugar so a brown crust will be formed. Bake in a moderate oven for one hour. This is a nice with game, roast pork, or breaded chicken. Sweet potatoes and corn are gratin form a most delicious dish.

Roast Young Chicken, Dindonneau.
Materials.—Young chicken, four pounds; bread crumbs dressing; salt pork, two or three slices.

Directions.—"Dindonneau" means "like a young turkey." Select, draw and singe a plump young chicken, make a stuffing of one cup of white bread crumbs, one-fourth cup of chopped celery, one-half can of cauliflower or an equal amount of fresh mushrooms, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, the same of chopped onion, the liver mixed fine and salt together and lay the thin slices of pork over the breast of the chicken, sprinkle over a little flour and put into a hot oven for ten minutes. Lower the fire to easy baking and baste frequently until tender. The rest of the giblets are chopped fine and put into the sauce or gravy.

Materials.—Pumpkin, cooked and strained, one pint; milk, one pint; eggs, two; sugar, one cup; salt, one teaspoonful; ginger one-half teaspoonful.

Directions.—Cut the pumpkin with-

Rare Works of Art Stolen.

Twenty-five thousand dollars worth of art were stolen from the church of San Mossimo, Padua, Italy, recently. Early in the morning the thieves broke into the church and carried off two magnificent paintings by Giovanni Battista Tiepolo. The pictures hung in the side chapels on either side of the high altar, and were wrenched from their frames in such a hurry that portions of the canvas were left on the frames.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many Janesville People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive. It comes and goes—keeps you guessing. Learn the cause—then cure it. Possibly it's weak kidneys. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective. They're especially for weak or disordered kidneys.

Here's a Janesville case. Lewis Gower, decorator, 1214 Mineral Point Ave., Janesville, Wis. says: "Handling paints and turpentine probably started my kidney trouble, and I had severe attacks of pain through my loins. When I bent over I had trouble in straightening again. My kidneys acted irregularly. It is possible that riding a bicycle had something to do with bringing on the backache. It was Doan's Kidney Pills that cured me. Since then my kidneys have been strong and haven't had any more pains or aches. I still use Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile and they keep my kidneys in good shape."

Where There's A Will

It wasn't comfortable for Mr. Dick, but he took it much better than I expected. He went over and gave his wife a hand to help her up, and still holding hers, he turned to Miss Patty. "You are perfectly right," he said. "I don't see how she could myself. The more you know of me the more you'll wonder. But she did, we're up against that."

He grinned at Miss Patty, and after a minute Miss Patty smiled back. But it wasn't much of a smile. Suddenly Mrs. Dick made a dive for Miss Patty and threw her arms around her.

"You darling!" she cried. "I'm so glad to see you again—Pat, you'll tell father, won't you? He'll take it from you. If I tell him he'll have apoplexy or something."

But Miss Patty set her pretty mouth—both those girls have their father's mouth—and held her sister out at arm's length and looked at her. "Listen," she said. "Do you know what you have done to me? Do you know that when father knows this he's going to annul the marriage or have Mr. Carter arrested for kidnapping or abduction—whatever, it is." Mrs. Dick pucker her face to cry, and Mr. Dick took a step forward, but Miss Patty waved him off. "You know father as well as I do, Dolly. You know what he is, and lately he's been awful."

"He can't annul it," said Mr. Dick angrily. "I'm of age. And I can support my wife, too, or will be able—soon."

"Dolly's not of age," said Miss Patty wearily. "I've sat up all night figuring it out. He's going to annul the marriage, or he'll make a scandal any way, and that's just as bad. Dolly—she turned to her sister imploringly—"Dolly, I can't have a scandal now. You know how Oskar's people have taken this, anyhow; they've given in, because he insisted, but they don't want me, and if there's a lot of notoriety now the emperor will send him to Africa or some place, and—"

"If you really want me to be happy," Miss Patty finished, going over to her, "you'll go back to school until this wedding is over."

"I won't leave Dicky," she swung around and gave Mr. Dick an adoring glance, and Miss Patty looked discouraged.

"Take him with you," she said. "Isn't there some place near where he could stay, and telephone you now and then?"

"Telephone!" said Mrs. Dick scornfully.

"Can't leave," Mr. Dick objected. "Got to be on the property. Look here, Miss—Miss Patricia, why can't we stay here, where we are? It's very comfortable—that is, it's livable. They've got somebody to take my place in the house."

"And father needn't know a thing—you can fix that," broke in Mrs. Dick. "And after your wedding he will be in a better humor; he'll know it's over and not up to him any more."

Miss Patty sat down on the soap box.

"We might carry it off," she said. "If I could only go back to town! But father is in one of his tantrums, and he won't go, or let me go. The idea!—with Aunt Honoria on the long-distance wire every day, having hysterics, and my clothes waiting to be tried on and everything. I'm desperate."

I put the eggs on a platter, and poured the coffee, and we all sat around the soap box and ate.

Everybody felt better for the meal, and we were sitting there laughing and talking and very cheerful, when Mr. Van Alstyne opened the door and looked in. His face was stern, but when he saw us, with Miss Patty on her knees toasting a piece of bread and Mr. Dicky passing the tin basin as a finger-bowl, he stopped scowling and looked amused.

"They're here, Sallie," he called to his wife, and they both came in, covered with snow, and we had coffee and eggs all over again. Well, they stayed for an hour, and Mr. Sam talked himself black in the face and couldn't get anywhere. So finally he gave up and said he washed his hands of the whole affair, and that he was going to make another start on his wedding journey, and if they wanted to be a pair of fools it wasn't up to him—only for heaven's sake not to cry about it.

And when the Dicks found they were not going to be separated we had more coffee all around and everybody grew more cheerful.

Oh, we were very cheerful! I look back now and think how cheerful we were, and I shudder. We sat around the fire and ate and laughed, and Mr. Dick arranged that Mr. Pierce should come out to him every evening for orders about the place—if he accepted, and everybody felt he would—and I was to come at the same time and bring a basket of provisions for the next day. Of course, the instant Mr. Jennings left the young couple could go into the sanatorium as guests under another name and be comfortable. And as soon as the time limit was up, and the place was still running smoothly, they could declare the truth, claim the sanatorium, having fulfilled the conditions of the will, and confess to Mr. Jennings—over the long-distance wire.

Well, it promised well, I must say. Mr. Stitt left on the ten train that morning, looking lemon-colored and mottled. He insisted that he wasn't able to go, but Mr. Sam gave him a headache powder and put him on the train, anyhow.

Yes, as I say, it promised well. But we made two mistakes; we didn't count on Mr. Thornburn, and we didn't know Mr. Pierce. And who could have imagined that Mike the bath man would do as he did?

After luncheon, when everybody at Hope Springs takes a nap, we had another meeting at the shelter-house, this time with Mr. Pierce. He looked dazed when I took him to the shelter-house and he saw Mr. Dick and Mrs. Dick and the Mr. Sams and Miss Patty. They gave him a lawn-mower to sit on, and Mr. Sam explained the situation.

"I know it's asking a good bit, Mr. Pierce," he said, "and personally I can see only one way out of all this. Carter ought to go in and take charge, and his—er—wife ought to go back to school. But they won't have it, and—er—there are other reasons." He glanced at Miss Patty.

Mr. Pierce also glanced at Miss Patty. He'd been glancing at her at intervals of two seconds ever since she came in, and being a woman and having a point to gain, Miss Patty seemed to have forgotten the night before, and was very nice to him. After everything had been explained, including Mr. Jennings' liver and disposition, she turned to him and said:

"We are in your hands, you see, Mr. Pierce. Are you going to help us? And when she asked him that, it was plain to me that he was only sorry he couldn't do helping.

"If everybody agrees to it," he said, looking at her, "and you all think it's feasible and I can carry it off, I'm perfectly willing to try."

"Of course," said Mr. Dick. "I expect to retain control, you understand that, I suppose, Pierce. You can come out every day for instructions. I dare say sanatoriums are hardly in your line."

"Oh—oh, well no, hardly," he said; "I've tried everything else, I believe. It can't be worse than carrying a bunch of sweet peas from garden to garden."

Mr. Dick stopped walking and turned suddenly to stare at Mr. Pierce. "Sweet—what?" he said.

Everybody else was talking, and I was the only one who saw him change color.

"Sweet peas," said Mr. Pierce. "And that reminds me—I'd like to make one condition, Mr. Carter. I feel in a measure responsible for the company; most of them have gone back to New York, but the leading woman, Miss Summers, is sick at the hotel in Finleyville. I'd like to bring her here for two weeks to recuperate. I assure you, I have no interest in her, but I'm sorry for her; she's had the mumps."

"Why, you've just had them, too, Dicky," said his wife. They all turned to look at him, and I must say his expression was curious. Luckily, I had the wit to knock over the breakfast basket, which was still there, and when we'd gathered up the broken china, Mr. Dick had got himself in hand.

"I'm sorry, old man," he said to Mr. Pierce, "but I'm not in favor of bringing Miss—the person you speak of—up to the sanatorium just now. Mumps, you know—very contagious, and all that." "She's over that part," Mr. Pierce said; "she only needs to rest."

"Certainly, if she isn't well, bring her up," said Miss Patty. "Only—won't she know your name is not Carter?"

"She's discretion itself," Mr. Pierce said. "Her salary hasn't been paid for a month, and as I'm responsible, I'd be glad to see her looked after."

"I don't want her here. I'll—I'll pay her board at the hotel," Mr. Dick began, "only for heaven's sake, don't—"

He stopped, for every one was staring.

"Why in the world would you do that?" Miss Patty asked. "Don't be ridiculous. That's the only condition Mr. Pierce has made."

Mr. Dick stalked to the window and looked out, his hands in his pockets. "Oh, bring her up! Bring her up!" he said without looking around. "If Pierce won't stay unless he can play the friend in need, all right."

That was Wednesday. In the afternoon Miss Julia Summers came with three lap robes, a white lace veil, and a French poodle in a sleigh and went to bed in one of the best rooms, and that night we started to move out furniture to the shelter-house. Toward daylight Mr. Sam dropped a wash-bowl on my toe and I went to bed with an arnica compress.

I jumped out in time to be on hand before Miss Cobb got there, but what with a chillblain on my heel and hardly any sleep for two nights—not to mention my toe—I wasn't any too pleasant.

She told me about Miss Summers being still shut in her room, and how she'd offered Mike an extra dollar to give the white poodle a Turkish bath—it being under the weather as to health—and how Mike had soaked the little beast for an hour in a tub of water, forgetting the sulphur, and it had come out a sort of mustard color, and how Miss Summers had had hysterics when she saw it.

"Mike dipped him in bluing to bleach him again, or rather her—it's name is Arabello," Miss Cobb said, "but all it did was to make it mottled like an Easter egg. Everybody is charmed. There were no dogs allowed while the old doctor lived. Things were different."

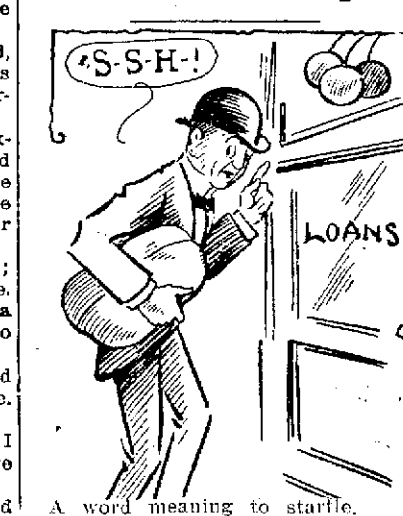

"Yes, things were different," I assented. "How—how does Mr. Carter get along?"

Miss Cobb sniffed. "Well," she said, "goodness knows I'm no trouble maker, but somebody ought to tell that young man a few things. He's forever looking at the thermometer and opening windows. I declare, if I hadn't brought my woolen tights along I'd have frozen to death at breakfast. Everybody's complaining."

A step cracked on the dried leaves about the turn of the path. From about one of the bare brown trunks appeared a man's figure. And at the sight, a very calm of indifference settled over the spirit of Constance. So the devotee who has anticipated the sacrament through nights and days of austere finds herself, as the priest approaches, without a ripple of emotion; so the coward, who has shivered through eternities of agony at the thought of the ax, finds himself incapable of thought or feeling or action against the pillar, moved neither hand nor tongue nor eye. He stood close beside her on the piazza and— "Forever!" he said.

Constance swayed forward into his outstretched arms. "CHAPTER XXII. Happy Ever After. Senior Juan Perez, Peraltia, Argentine Republic, South America. Dear Friend:

I received your letter last month and was glad to hear that everything is going well with you. Thank you for the picture. I see you're just as handsome as ever. If you wear those clothes all the time, though, your laundry bills must be something fierce. Both Martin and I are glad you're doing so fine in a business way. I knew you would, once you settled down—guess the job helped you. Trouble with you at the start was, you went up against the big game too soon. But I am most pleased to hear that your sister is beginning to get kinder in her feelings to me. Lord knows, everything did was for the best. Am also glad to hear that her health is good and she is getting stout. I bet she's as handsome as a girl. Now she hasn't anything on her mind.

In regard to a certain event three years ago, would say that it's all blown over. Marty still drops in at headquarters a good deal, and I had enough law to run this country. He goes to church regularly in our own district. I'm getting so careful with my grammar that I almost never talk like I want to, except when Martin and I are alone.

Now as regards friends of yours and mine, I'll tell you all the news I've got. Do you remember that Miss Harding in the boarding-house? She's Marty's stenographer now, and a mighty good one. We're so afraid she'll get married sometime, and Marty will lose her, Miss Jones is married—lives somewhere up Yonkers way. Mrs. Moore has gone over to Jersey to keep house for an old uncle.

Modern science has determined that instead of treating alcoholism as a disease it should be treated as a poison. It is emphatically NOT a disease. It is a poison and as such must be eradicated. The modern drinker is slowly filling his system with the poison and drinking to excess results in conditions where the nerves and organs refuse to do their work and a treatment which will remove the poison becomes necessary.

Here is where the excessive drinker is not to blame for his continued drinking. The system demands it; it would cause the GREATEST suffering to deprive the victim of his accustomed stimulant.

In coming to the Neal Institute liquor is not taken from the patient but with the Neal Treatment he loses his taste for alcohol in any form, and the craving desire, and appetite is removed entirely. Then is when the former drinking man realizes the satisfactory results of the Neal Treatment. THE NEAL INSTITUTE, 444 Cass St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Guess she expects some money from him when she dies. Poor Professor Noll broke down last winter and was in the hospital for a month. I knew it was coming—no human stomach could stand those slop victuals. I went to see him as often as I could and talked to him like a mother. Well, he's eating his steaks and chops now as vigorous as the day comes round. He's very much interested in a new fancy kind of religion—it's called "The Thought of the Age." I can't seem to get the hang of it—but the point is that if everybody would get together and think the same thought all the time for a piece—why, something's going to happen. I guess likely.

Betsy-Barbara and Mr. North live in a little house on Long Island, and Mr. North commutes. He's making so much money he says he's ashamed of it. They have twin boys, and if ever I saw limbs—well, Betsy-Barbara is on the jump all the time keeping them from committing fifty-seven varieties of murder and suicide they've thought out for themselves. Martin says he's glad he's given up his old job, for it certainly would be up to him to get them both "laid" some day. But I notice he's ready to go over there every time we're invited, and he spends the whole time playing with those youngsters.

The Wades are still abroad. Their little daughter was born in Florence. Mrs. Wade nearly died, but she didn't mind that child, judging by the pictures they've sent, is a perfect little angel. Mrs. Wade says her name is Betsy-Barbara and she's the apple of her father's eye. They'll come back next spring.

Well, I guess that's about all I gave Marty your invitation, but he says he can't see time ahead to take a long vacation. If we ever can, we'll come down there and visit you with great pleasure. And so, with love to your sister and best wishes to yourself, in which my husband joins me, I remain, Yours truly, Ancient and Honorable.

The word Gumball, when used as a surname, has nothing at all to do with any part of the anatomy. It denotes that its first bearer was a man of considerable importance and great power in the state. It is derived from the Norse word "gumbald," which itself has nothing to do with any affliction, but means "bold in war."

OLIVE OIL.

Under the Pure Food Law all oil made from olives is pure olive oil, yet there is as much difference in olive oil as there is in butter. Cheap olive oil is made from olives that through cause of decay, insects or storms fall to the ground. Sound, healthy olives stay on the trees until ripe, like our apples. They are then gathered, the oil pressed without heat. This is virgin olive oil. The second pressing is obtained with steam and hot water, which is known as fine table oil. The rich flavor and medicinal properties are found only in the virgin oil which is of a greenish-yellow color. It is very nutritious. Used in nervous diseases is a mild laxative; has a great reputation as a remedy for stones in the bladder, and is a skin food and complexion beautifier through its action on the liver. The supply of this virgin oil is always limited. It is quickly bought up for medicinal purposes and found only in drug stores. Mr. Pennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, personally tests our olive oil. You are therefore positive of obtaining the true virgin oil imported direct from Southern France. We sell it at 40c one-half pint, 75c a full pint bottle. Get it at our store, The Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee & River streets. The Drug Store that makes a specialty of Drugs.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Oct. 4, 1873.—Brown is Coming: J. R. Brown, the mind reader, the young man of those wonderful powers, the metropolitan press has given such enthusiastic accounts, will give one of his novel entertainments in this city, at Lappin's hall on Wednesday night, the 8th inst. Mr. Brown possesses the power to divine, in a manner calculated to dumb and confound, the listeners, the secret thoughts of those about him. Strangers whom he has never seen before yield carefully guarded treasures of their minds to the searching scrutiny of the diving powers. His is a natural endowment and he makes no effort to clothe it in the mysteries of spiritualism, clairvoyance or mesmerism. He simply reflects what other people think and science has been unable to fathom or explain the secret of his wonderful powers and gift. The new time table issued by the M. & St. P. R. R. Co., provides for the removal of the passenger train which has been for years running daily from Monroe to Milwaukee and return. After Sunday it will cease to run. One train each day, a mixed freight and passenger, will run from Monroe to Milton and return, will be scheduled to make connection with the Milwaukee train. The employees of the machine, boiler and blacksmith shop of the Wisconsin division of the Chicago and North western railroad, at Chicago, 250 in number were discharged yesterday morning in consequence of a strike. The cause of the trouble was the failure of the company to pay them their due wages during the month of August and September. After the strike their August funds were advanced and the men discharged in a body. The case is arousing great public sympathy as they are totally dependent upon their monthly wages for a livelihood having little or nothing in reserve. Deprived of two months' honest earnings, rigorous necessities force them to demand to convince the company of the desirability.

Twenty years ago today, rebels threw shells into the city of Rio Janeiro, Brazil—Oct. 4, 1893.
